Jacquemus is a new French fashion brand, created in 2009 by designer Simon Porte Jacquemus.

It has a very characteristic style. Surreal, abstract and childish. Although at the same time it draws an impeccable line between the conceptual and the commercial.

His collections are minimalist but at the same time innovative, arising from the classic mixed with destruction, thus channeling his authentic and ultra-sensitive creativity. In general, he rarely uses prints, but combines different shades of colors, sometimes very similar, thus creating absolute harmony.

The accessories, whether large or small, attract everyone's attention. Characterized by their extreme proportions; being too tiny, for example the "Le chiquitito" bag; or excessive like the "Le Grand chapeau Valensole" hat.

Jacquemus draws heavily on his origins, France. Also from his childhood, games or drawings he made as a child ... In nature, the beach. But especially from his family, since for him they are essential. Especially his mother, (deceased at only 42) who has been a source of constant inspiration for him. "My mother was very warm and also a bit childish, she could wear very large pants or a grandmother dress. She did not represent the French chic of the time. She was too cheerful for that, with her shining eyes and her resplendent personality". His first collection was in honor of her.

The following catalog is for the spring-summer 2020 season and is named SS21 FLORASION. This time of year when the flowers come out to bloom. For this reason and the closeness that the artist maintains with nature, it is named in this way.
